Looking for new approaches that will have funders showing you the money? You will want to join this segment. For many nonprofits, the COVID-19 crisis is exacerbating weaknesses, leaving them with no choice but to reexamine their business model. Most nonprofits rely on philanthropy and philanthropy doesn’t usually move fast. If you ever heard of the color theory, you know that color is more than what meets the eye. The same can be said about philanthropy. This robust segment will explore how the philanthropy and social investment (impact investing) sectors are responding to the pandemic, and share how nonprofit leaders can be strategic and innovative to garner the financial resources they need to actualize their various missions. Join us as we launch this segment with a talk called, What Now Philanthropy? Stay tuned for the entire segment that features a panel of grant makers who will discuss The Color of Philanthropy: Grantmaking, followed by a panel of investors titled, The Color of Philanthropy: Impact Investing. The segment will conclude with a powerful fire side chat with Kathryn Finney and Soledad O’Brien on Creating Systems Change through Innovation and Investment in Entrepreneurship.

COVID-19 disproportionately impacts Black communities and will impose an additional burden on Black-owned businesses, which already deal with a vicious cycle of structural barriers and disadvantages. AEO’s report, The Tapestry of Black Business Ownership in America, shows that the interlinkage of the racial wealth gap, the credit gap, and the trust gap act like kryptonite in keeping Black-owned businesses from reaching their potential. Join us in this session as we explore What’s Happening to Black Businesses NOW! A diverse cross-section of leaders from across the country will discuss Bold Actions to Rescue Black Business Owners and a panel will share what we are learning from six cities across the country that are focused on serving Black businesses in a wide ranging discussion among Business Voices from the Tapestry Action Lab.

Dedrick has also worked for Reverend Al Sharpton’s National Action Network and the Institute for Policy Studies.

Susan Taylor Batten
President & CEO
Association of Black Foundation Executives

Susan Taylor Batten is president and chief executive officer of ABFE: A Philanthropic Partnership for Black Communities. ABFE (established in 1971 as the Association of Black Foundation Executives) is a membership-based philanthropic organization that advocates for responsive and transformative investments in Black communities. Since joining ABFE in 2009, Batten has led the organization’s philanthropic advising and programming on responsive philanthropy in Black communities for foundation leaders, donors and aligned partners.

Batten came to ABFE after more than 25 years of leadership experience in both the private and public sectors. Prior to joining ABFE, Batten served as senior associate with the Annie E. Casey Foundation, a grantmaking institution focused on child welfare. In this role, she served as staff in the Community Change Initiatives Unit and coordinated a portfolio on equity, diversity and inclusion. In the public sector, Batten worked as a senior analyst for the U.S. Department of Agriculture where she directed research and evaluation on food assistance programs; she also served in the Government of the District of Columbia as an analyst on initiatives supporting children, youth and families.

Batten currently serves on the board at the United Philanthropy Forum and the Schott Foundation for Public Education, and is an adjunct lecturer at the Valdry Center for Philanthropy at Southern University. She received her master’s degree in social work from Howard University and her bachelor’s degree in English and political science from Fisk University.

Aron Betru
Managing Director, Center for Financial Markets
Milken Institute

Aron Betru, Managing Director of the Center for Financial Markets at the Milken Institute, with more than 20 years of experience, leads the Center’s Access to Capital and strategic innovative financing initiatives to enhance social impact, both in the U.S. and in developing countries. Mr. Betru also leads the Institute’s work on Opportunity Zones and Qualified Opportunity Funds. Mr. Betru was a member of the steering group for the Blended Finance TaskForce launched by the Business & Sustainable Development Commission as well as Co-Chaired the Partnership for Lending in Underserved Markets, a joint initiative with the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Prior to the Milken Institute, Mr. Betru was the Co-Founder and Chief Executive Officer at Financing For Development, specializing in innovative financing solutions for international development; Mr. Betru pioneered new ways of leveraging guarantee-backed financing of public health commodities, mobilizing millions of dollars in both commercial lending for malaria and trade financing for reproductive health. Mr. Betru’s extensive experience includes international development roles at the United Nations Foundation, TechnoServe and Dalberg Global Development Advisors as well as private sector experience at McKinsey & Co. and Goldman Sachs.

Mr. Betru is also a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations and a regular contributor to the Global Health and Diplomacy magazine writing on innovative finance in public health as well as a contributor to the global dialogue on pandemic financing with speaking engagements at the National Academy of Sciences and Voice of America Interviews. Mr. Betru is a member of the Board of Directors for Calvert Impact Capital and FHI Foundation. He holds an MBA from Columbia University, an MA from Johns Hopkins SAIS, and a BA in Economics and International Studies from Northwestern University.

Brian Burnett
Founder/CEO
Glenwood South Tailor + Alterations

Brian Burnett is the Founder of Glenwood South Tailors + Alterations. GSTA team has grown by 30% since inception and serves busy Triangle professionals/executives that value a trusted advisor regarding their tailoring, alterations, and bespoke needs. He is also Co-Founder of Burnett Development, a budding affordable housing and commercial asset firm.

Brian received his Bachelor of Arts in Communications from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, 2013.

While touring Europe, Brian explored the bespoke tailoring trade. Specifically Savile Row, Jermyn St, Piccadilly Circus and various highstreet shops in London peaked his curiosity regarding sartorial tailoring. This culture and the personalized nature of how tailors carried on with clients and their lives was a vastly different experience compared to what he was accustomed to for over 10 years back in the US. However, the couture inspired streetwear culture of the Champs-Elysees district, Florence’s Ponte Vecchio area and Rome’s luxury tailoring houses planted the seeds of what would become a true bespoke sartorial obsession. The combination of foundational clothier training at Nordstrom combined with luxury menswear “people watching” of European silhouettes created an appetite for an obsession with fit and symmetry. Upon his return, he joined the SaaS industry for companies such as Bronto Software and iciBlueAcorn, but this passion for tailoring remained.
While in the tech space, Brian gathered deeper digital insights regarding the trending shift of consumer behaviors presented by e-commerce and the market gaps it created.

With this knowledge and a love for people, Brian launched GSTA in 2015 on his lunch break at his last SaaS company, just 4 months before he was laid off. Funded by his $4k commission and one seamstress, to date, the GSTA team has leveraged Brian’s love for sartorial tailoring, relationship based service, C-Suite experience, and world class customer experience. North of 5k clients to date, Brian leads the Triangle’s first luxury tailoring house infused with a mobile-focused infrastructure and fueled by a team of 18 local artisans, tailors, and stylists for a true end-to-end solution for today’s busy professional.

Brian’s personal clientele includes Triangle leaders such as Mr and Mrs. Gregg Lowe (CREE), Scot Wingo (Get Spiffy), Brooks Bell (BrooksBell), Steve De May (Duke Energy), Gordon Grubb (Grubb Ventures), Zach Maurides (TeamWorks), NC Governor Roy Cooper, and various other CEOs. Brian and his team’s mission is to continue to provide a personalized and consultative wardrobing approach to North Carolina’s executives and professionals as they drive our global economy from the best city in the South East.

Prior to TruFund, he was Vice President for Capital Access Programs at Carver Federal Savings Bank in Harlem where he developed industry-leading M/WBE capital access programs, Vice President of Community Development at Bank of America where he worked closely with nonprofit and government entities to promote economic and community development in underserved neighborhoods in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and Vice President and Global Relationship Manager in the Multinational Lending Division at BankBoston where he managed a $2 billion global credit portfolio spanning 16 countries. He began his finance career as a Senior Credit Analyst at PNCBank in Pittsburgh, PA.

Kathryn Finney
Author and 3x Startup Founder

Kathryn Finney is an author and the founder of digitalundivided (DID), a social enterprise that uses data (and heart) to create systems change through innovation and entrepreneurship. An Echoing Green, French-American, and Eisenhower Fellow, Kathryn started digitalundivided after selling her company, TBF GROUP, one of the first influencer media companies.

A White House Champion of Change and a past member of the National Advisory Council on Innovation and Entrepreneurship (NACIE) appointed by the Obama Administration, Kathryn founded the first venture capital fund focused on Black and Latinx women founders. Since 2013, DID has impacted thousands of people and helped raise over $100 million in investments.

Trained as an epidemiologist at Yale University, Kathryn’s pioneering research, “#ProjectDiane”, drew widespread buzz for disrupting the dialogue around women of color and tech entrepreneurship. The findings from #ProjectDiane put a unique spotlight on the problem of inclusion in the innovation space, leading digitalundivided to develop a “first of its kind” solution. digitalundivided’s BIG Incubator is the only space and program dedicated to the growth of high-growth tech businesses founded by Black and Latinx women.
Kathryn has received numerous honors and awards including, the Grace Hopper ABIE award, Working Mother’s “50 Most Powerful Mothers”, ROOT100 List (4 years in a row), Marie Claire’s 10 Women to Watch, Entrepreneurs Magazine’s “Woman to Watch”, Ebony Power 100, Black Enterprise “40 under 40” list, and was inducted into Spelman College’s “Game Changers Academy.”

Kathryn was honored by the Borough of Manhattan with the “Kathryn Finney Appreciation Day”. In 2017, Kathryn received an Honorary Doctorate from Mount Holyoke College and inducted into the African-American Alumni Hall of Fame at Rutgers University.

W. K. Kellogg Foundation

Jeanne Wardford is a program officer for Family Economic Security at the W.K. Kellogg Foundation in Battle Creek, Michigan.

In this role as a member of the Family Economic Security team, Wardford is responsible for advancing employment equity business enterprise development focused policies, practices, strategies and opportunities for affecting positive systemic change within communities aimed at creating conditions in which children can develop, learn and grow. She works closely with staff to ensure integration and coordination of efforts.

Jeanne has dedicated her life to working for the betterment of individuals both in the public and private sector. Over the last two decades, she has held several positions of progressive leadership in both the public and private sector. Her interest has always been working to develop young people and the communities in which they live. Throughout her career, she has been recognized for her ability to get to the root of the problem and recommend fair, equitable, and often times innovative solutions to age old problems. She is known for her vigorous policy work and advocacy for children and families.

Prior to joining the foundation in 2015, Jeanne was director for National Partnerships at NeighborWorks America in Washington, D.C. In this role, she built strategic collaborations with public and private investors and secured resources for the implementation of a national asset development program, which included financial education, literacy, coaching and community development strategy. She has also worked in community development, fund development and evaluation consulting for TaylarMade Consulting, Inc., where she worked with public, private and academic sectors and their funding partners.

Jeanne’s leadership in support of education, racial equity, and economic development is reflected not only in her day to day activities, but also in her membership on a variety of boards, including Detroit Public Library Foundation, Center for Community Progress, Warrior Women, A project of the Michigan Women’s Foundation and National Women’s Business Council.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation (WKKF), founded in 1930 as an independent, private foundation by breakfast cereal pioneer, Will Keith Kellogg, is among the largest philanthropic foundations in the United States. Guided by the belief that all children should have an equal opportunity to thrive, WKKF works with communities to create conditions for vulnerable children so they can realize their full potential in school, work and life.

The Kellogg Foundation is based in Battle Creek, Michigan, and works throughout the United States and internationally, as well as with sovereign tribes. Special emphasis is paid to priority places where there are high concentrations of poverty and where children face significant barriers to success. WKKF priority places in the U.S. are in Michigan, Mississippi, New Mexico and New Orleans; and internationally, are in Mexico and Haiti. For more information, visit www.wkkf.org
